

"this IP video solution... is the first of its kind" - Buildings Magazine

Leading Builders Trust Smartvue® Surveillance

Homestead is one of the leading residential contractors across the Southeast.

"Running a fast growing residential construction and property management company requires me to be in 10 places at one time. In addition to keeping an eye on our progress at each site, we wanted to prevent construction material theft and also reduce insurance liability. We looked for a high quality video surveillance system that would not only let us monitor construction sites remotely from a PC or cell phone, but a system that was easy and cost effective to setup and use. Another important feature for us was to ability to move cameras at the site as needed and move the entire system from one site to another - all without having to hire outside IT staff or surveillance company to do it. To install the system, we placed the wireless recording device in the construction trailer and then put the cameras directly at the construction area. With the Smartvue wireless outdoor cameras, we have been able to run at a range of a quarter mile so all we have to do is get power to the cameras. The entire system was plug and play for installation and is very easy to use as well as move from site to site."

Dean Montgomery
CEO
Homestead Construction

